VANCOUVER

By Anne Broadfoot

Spectacular by the grace of nature, Vancouver offers a packet of delights few other centres can match. The city, surrounded by a magnificent Bay and embraced by soaring mountains, has all the style, sophistication and creature comforts world travellers demand, but remains determined to deliver its delights at a leisurely pace. Enjoyment is of great importance, as the many activities available prove, but Vancouverites have never lost sight of the simpler pleasures which nature has abundantly supplied.

It takes little more than a brisk spring breeze to set colourful sailboats dancing on the waves, or tempt a skier to load up on sunscreen to thwart the rays that shine warmly on the glaciers that allow them to ski into summer. Any month of the year there's a park trail that beckons, a trout stream that cries out for the flash of a fishing fly, or a golf course where manicured greens seem to improve anyone's game.

Nestled in the southwest corner of the province, the city sits at the foot of a range of coastal mountains extending to the north, and waterways embrace it on almost every side. These physical surroundings contribute to a seemingly endless series of spectacular views from points throughout the city, even the downtown core.

Known as Canada's most beautiful city, Vancouver has often been compared to such world renowned centres as San Francisco, Rio de Janeiro or Sydney, but its compact size makes it less sprawling and a visitor finds it less intimidating too. Noted for its gardens, there's a constantly changing spectrum of colour from early spring through every successive season, as the 40,000 early blossoming cherry trees give way to the riotous rainbow created by azaleas, magnolias, rhododendrons and hundreds of other shrubs, bushes and flowers that thrive in this mild coastal climate.

The city suffers few extremes of weather, with mean temperatures ranging from 4 degrees C to 17C (38F to 64F), rarely going below freezing point in winter or above 30C (90F) in summer.

Another colour not uncommon in Vancouver is the gray pall of mist and rain, which the city treats with respect because the rain washes away the debris of urban life, clears the pollution from the air, provides the clean, sparkling drinking water everyone enjoys, and promotes the technicolour growth that brightens life through every season of the year.

Now only four years into its second century, Vancouver is growing and changing but mindful of retaining the beauty of its benevolent natural surroundings. The Port of Vancouver, which has offered anchorage even longer than the city has existed, has achieved the status of a full-service load centre, and has become North America's import/export tonnage leader. Canada is a trading nation, and in view of Vancouver's Pacific Coast location, its importance in Canada's national system of 15 major ports is undenied. Collectively the Ports of Vancouver and Prince Rupert produced 51% of the employment and 61% of the revenues generated by Canada's national ports system last year. Future growth will continue in bulk and container loading facilities on both sides of Vancouver's Harbour to keep Canada's front door on the Pacific ocean wide open for trade and tourism.

Luxurious vessels of some ten international cruise lines disembark at the Canada Place Cruise Ship Terminal and Ballantyne Pier. Opened in time for the city's 100th Birthday and the International EXPO '86, this terminal facility has expanded the cruise business as it can accommodate up to five of the world's massive maritime craft at once. Hundreds of passengers disembark into a convenient inner-harbour location, which is also shared by the World Trade Centre, the Vancouver Trade and Convention Centre and first-class Pan Pacific Hotel. It is near the shopping and entertainment centres of the downtown peninsula.

The ethnic backgrounds of Vancouver's population can be traced to every corner of the globe and this has created interesting experiences in dining, entertainment, shopping and sporting activities.

Vancouver is a shopper's mecca because retailers bring every conceivable type of merchandise from around the world to satisfy your shopping spree. Classic to contemporary fur creations are favorites with many offshore visitors, and also popular is British Columbia jade. Sleek, highly polished sculptures of native fauna such as Canada Geese, killer whales and seals are big sellers. Northwest Coast Indian and Canadian Inuit carvings are sought by collectors, as are the more practical crafts of the Cowichan tribe of Northwest Coast native, who produce the world-famed Cowichan sweater, knitted from roughly spun wool that literally sheds water.

Vancouver's Chinatown is mooted to soon move from second largest in North America to the top spot. In keeping with its long-held stature as a permanent and important segment of the city's past and present, the Chinatown area is another shopper's paradise, where fine foods, colourful silks, intricate bamboo basketry and other exotic goods from jewelry to finely crafted Chinese carvings shouldn't be forgotten in a shopping foray.

dova Streets have been restored to house engaging boutiques, galleries, international restaurants and nightclubs.

Bricked streets and old-fashioned street lamps add to the ambiance as does the 8 foot Gastown Steam Clock which is the only one of its kind in the world. A statue of "Gassy" Jack Deighton, who set up the city's first saloon in this area, indicates the legacy this saloon-keeper left to the city in this site's place name.

By day, shoppers swarm the smart shops and boutiques displaying arts, crafts, native sculpture, antiques as well as famous local and international designers. They come back at night for the fabulous food and entertainment in the restaurants and clubs.

The Landing Shopping Centre, located at the entrance to Gastown, is one of Vancouver's finest heritage buildings. From a rough and practicle warehouse, The Landing has re-emerged as a distinctively elegant shopping centre featuring a collection of fine restaurants and elegant up-market boutiques.

For visitors staying in the downtown core a short walk reveals everything from couture to culture, the original to the exotic. Robson Street is the Rodeo Drive of the north, offering the height of fashion clothing, continental type restaurants as varied as Chinese, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Mexican, Portuguese, Thai and Vietnamese, not to mention the basic North American favourites as well.

Sinclair Centre, at Hastings and Granville, is a complex built within the perimetre of four restored heritage buildings, tied together with a glass atrium that houses everything from food to fine fashion, books to bibelots, and gives access to harbour viewing and relaxation areas along the waterfront.

Vancouver gained world attention from EXPO 86 and retains a special place in the hearts of millions of international visitors who saw its beauty for the first time. An Expo legacy, the shiny polyhedron building which rose at the eastern end of False Creek, is now Science World, where you find fascinating hands-on scientific experiences for young and old. A dramatic facelift to the vacated exposition site is now underway, as the International Village being built will transform that was a neglected part of the city, as will nearby Thornton Park, a residential area rising on a site once occupied by Lafarge Cement. These projects will offer a continuous link between the developing North Shore of False Creek with the Dr. Sun Yat-Sen Gardens and Chinatown.

In keeping with its own park-like setting, the city of Vancouver and its surrounding municipalities abound in parks and green space, from tiny tot-lots to the thousand acre Stanley Park. One new gem is thousand square metre triangular shaped Portal Park at Thurlow and Hastings. This core area park is a popular lunch-time spot for brown-baggers who toil 9-5 nearby. It has a serene setting with its pavilion, four curving arches and lighting pillars, decorated with stained glass to contrast with the surrounding modern office towers. This is a perfect spot to watch the harbour, busy with ships from around the world, or to just sit in contemplation on a sun-drenched bench. Plazas exist all through the downtown area, where concerts entertain lunching workers, and trees, grass and plenty of handy seating give surcease to a weary walker. City planners have encouraged building developers to provide people oriented places to humanize the streetscape and these now link the walking areas of the inner city.

Probably the best known park is Stanley Park, a thousand acre wonderland of wilderness and tamed, manicured areas, where the zoo and aquarium, beaches, playing fields and picnic areas are well used. Another beloved green space in Vancouver is Queen Elizabeth Park, once an abandoned rock quarry and now 130 acres of spectacular garden and parkland. Vanier Park in Kitsilano is the site of the H.R. MacMillan Planetarium, Vancouver Museum, and the Maritime Museum. The Botanical Gardens at UBC provide another 110 acres of horticultural beauty.

But Vancouver now boasts Pacific Spirit Regional Park, its newest and one of the largest urban parks in Canada. Point Grey's University Endowment Lands have been brought into the fold of the Greater Vancouver Regional District's Park system, saving it forever for the residents and visitors who will enjoy the 1,850 acre natural site where 17 species of trees, scores of shrubs and wildflowers grow, more than 150 varieties of birds and mammals live, including deer, coyote, raccoons, otter, fox, mink, squirrels, bats, hares, skunks and mice. There are well marked trails where urban dwellers can stroll to relieve the stresses of civilization by discovering fascinating glades, ravines, bogs and byways throughout the park.

Visitors should explore some of the outlying municipalities like New Westminster, the original capital of British Columbia, SkyTrain, which has its terminus at Harbour Station on the waterfront, whisks commuters via underground tunnels through the city, gliding out onto an elevated route at Stadium Station, near the city's covered sports dome. Close by New Westminster's SkyTrain Station is Westminster Quay, a public market and shopping complex that leads onto a wide pedestrian way along the Fraser. Passengers can now continue over the Fraser and on to Surrey as well. If you're in the downtown area you can opt for different public transport at Harbour Station by choosing to cruise via SeaBus across Burrard Inlet to North Vancouver and its exciting new Lonsdale Quay Market, another world-class shopping experience in a sea-side setting.

Many visitors choose tour buses, local buses, double decker buses - even horse-drawn carriage rides around Stanley Park. Tours from local hotels take you further afield to visit a traditional west coast fishing village in Steveston. Or, you could choose a day-trip to the year-round resort village of Whistler. Many visitors prefer a day at Fantasy Garden in Richmond, where a retail complex and children's fun park are complimented by the serene beauty of the gardens. The Museum of Anthropology on the grounds of the University of British Columbia is dedicated to the preservation and presentation of artifacts unique to West Coast Indian culture and is high on the list of must-sees for those with a taste for history and art.

Tourism Vancouver has developed special "Discover the Magic" off-season packages that offer savings of up to 50 percent on accommodations, attractions, rental cars, restaurants, shopping and tours. If you are visiting outside traditional tourist months, look for the bright white awning on Dunsmuir St. where the Travel InfoCentre staff will give you personal assistance in trip planning, giving you information on current activities to enjoy and even help with ticket purchases to special events.

During major tourist periods a booth in Stanley Park will also assist in these matters, and for most inner city visitors the booth on the Plaza outside Eatons at Granville and Georgia is a cornucopia of travel information and assistance. Visit these booths or call for full information from 683-2000.

A different dimension has been added to Vancouver's nightlife now that casinos are scattered around the city. The Royal Diamond Casino is located downtown at Davie and Richards, while the Great Canadian Casino is near the Holiday Inn on West Broadway, and others are located in Richmond, Guildford and Langley.

Federal law in Canada prohibits the use of dice, so casino action centres on roulette and blackjack, where both players and charities are beneficiaries. A betting limit exists, so check with the casino operator when you arrive. A percentage of the proceeds from each British Columbia casino goes toward funding provincial non-profit societies. Vancouver's casinos are open from 6 p.m. til 2 a.m. seven days a week, so you can enjoy an exciting flutter at the tables in a congenial and conveniently located casino during your Vancouver visit, knowing your enjoyment is also contributed to the well being of many charitable institutions.

Outdoors or indoors, sports activities or cultural events - Vancouver offers them all. It's a city of contrast and variety, excitement and relaxation. It can give you - the visitor - exactly what you want. Discover the magic of this spectacular city by not wasting a minute of your precious period in this Pacific playground. ●

A SHOPPING ADVENTURE

Ever since the opening of its first department store in 1887, Vancouver has been known for its unsurpassed shopping. Through the years, the city has become a pioneer in various retail innovations. The first big shopping mall in Canada was built here, the rage for transforming warehouse space into boutiques began here and the current enchantment with ethnic shops and continental-style markets has been strongly influenced by the success that these outlets have had in Vancouver.

Downtown is a shoppers' Utopia, stocked with every conceivable line of merchandise, from standard department store fare to splendid exotica. Elegant boutiques and chic chains carry the latest in designer fashions, furs and jewellery. Domestic and imported gourmet items, from European, liqueur-filled chocolates to Native-smoked salmon, fill the shelves of specialty shops. A large selection of Indian carvings and handi-crafts, delicate china and fine works of art, are available for the most discriminating collector.

Whatever one's mood happens to be at a particular moment, one can find the appropriate shopping area in Vancouver to cater to one's whims. From the cosmopolitan sophistication of Robson Square to the continental casualness of Robsonstrasse to the seaport bustle of Granville Island Market or the charmingly bohemian atmosphere of Gastown, the shopper is guaranteed the most pleasurable hours of browsing that he has ever experienced. Even if all that one does in this city is shop, it's definitely worth the trip!□

THE PACIFIC SHIRT CO.
1190 Robson Street
681-2467
154 Water Street
Gastown
How it all started: Three ski instructors needed a substitute for the costly, dry clean only, ski sweaters. The fashion sweat was born. It wasn't long before other skiers were demanding these fancy fleece shirts. Pacific Shirt Co. grew out of these simple beginnings; to outfit not just skiers, but golfers, runners, tennis players, walkers, and even a few movie stars. In fact, just about anyone who'd like to look great, while remaining almost illegally comfortable, should end up in our store. This may sound corny, but the staff are really friendly. They know the product well enough to help you find what you want and are honest enough to steer you away from something that doesn't suit your needs. The ski instructors? They're still there in the stores. Drop in and say hello. While you're there, pick yourself up one of our original cotton, fleece, or nylon casuals. Distinctive and comfortable. By Pacific Shirt Co.

CONTEMPORARY MEETS TRADITIONAL. The gallery offerings include traditional works of contemporary artists and startling new visions boldly expressed with historic values. The President, Patti Rivard of the Westcoast Nation, has handpicked each item for its artistic value, quality and merit. The gallery offers the 3 dimensional power of native art evident in the elaborate cedar wood and argillite carvings. Exquisite jewellery of Silver, Turquoise and Gold carry a history in each design. Intricate handwoven baskets of reed, grass, cedar bark and roots reflect an ancient tradition of Indian people. Works of any artists represented may be commissioned in any appropriate medium to satisfy specific taste.

ATTRACTIONS

By Anne Broadfoot

Whether you stay in the immediate downtown area, or venture far afield to suburban reaches, a visit to Vancouver is replete with cerebral, cultural and visual pleasures to satisfy the most jaded activity-appetite.

If your passport to pleasure is parks, this area abounds not only in ground level green, but in the awesome wilderness of the soaring Coast Mountains so close to the city. Over millions of years the shifting of subterranian plates prodded terrain upward to form this stirring sight, once described so romantically by author-poet Pauline Johnson, as "dream-filled hills that swim into the sky amid their ever-drifting clouds of pearl and gray".

These Coast Mountains, while always providing visual relief from city concrete, also provide year-round pleasures of skiing, hiking and other alpine adventures. Members of the Capilano tribe called the two dark mountains looming highest on the North Shore the "Two Sisters", but 19th Century pioneers detected a resemblance to the recumbent lions at the foot of Nelson's column in London, and this similarity resulted in the early settlers renaming them accordingly.

The lush green of Stanley Park lures people during every month of the year. This world famous park shares its thousand acres with primordial forest and playing field, manicured gardens and aquarium, zoo, natural walking trails, elusive lily-filled lakes and an abundance of trees, bushes and wildflowers whose growth is encouraged by the gentle and damp coastal climate that ensures park visiting can be enjoyed most of the year without snow cover or biting cold to mar the pleasure.

A seawall circumnavigates the park peninsula and is popular for strollers, joggers and cyclists. The Lumberman's Arch Water Playground and Second Beach Pool are family areas, as is the English Bay Beach and the Lost Lagoon shoreline, where families feed the willing swans and ducks and drink in the beauty of the most stunning water lily carpet in season. Theatre Under the Stars performs at Malkin Bowl during the summer months, and the Petting Zoo is another family visiting favorite, near the Children's Train that takes an exciting trip through a dense part of the forested park to catch glimpses of buffalo, flamingos, wolves and other wildlife in a natural setting. This train becomes a Christmas Fantasy train during the season, where tots are treated to a visual display of twinkling holiday lights that give a titillating reminder of Santa's visit to come.

The Vancouver Aquarium is internationally acclaimed for its outstanding display of over 8,000 aquatic specimens from every watery corner of the world. But the main attractions will always be the Killer and Beluga Whale shows, though the Otter and Harbour Seal feedings are also great favorites of youthful visitors. The Aquarium is open all year round, but check with the box office at 682-1118 for seasonal information and prices.

There are twenty three municipalities and Electoral Areas in the Greater Vancouver Regional District and fifteen Regional Parks administered by GVRD offer unlimited adventures, with planned events all year long that range from bog walking to bird watching, from beach combing to nature hikes.

The Regional Park System stretches from Bowen Island in the west to the Matsqui Trail in the east, from the North Shore Mountains to the Canada/U.S. border, and covers an immensely varied terrain that includes seashore, marsh, mountain, forest and meadow. Capilano River Regional Park the most heavily visited of all GVRD parks, is a 160-hectare expanse in West and North Vancouver, cleft by the swift-flowing Capilano River that has cut a spectacular canyon through the granite based region.

Take a swaying trip by foot 450 ft. across the Capilano River Canyon, on the world's longest pedestrian suspension span, the Capilano Suspension Bridge (985-7474). A trip up Grouse Mountain Skyride (984-0661), a 100 passenger aerial tramway, that takes you over 4,000 ft. (1200 metres) to the top of Grouse Mountain for a panoramic view of the lower mainland, waterways and Islands. In the summer hike the mountain trails, picnic in the Alpine Meadows or in the winter ski the slopes day and night; then finish your visit with fine dining, dancing and entertainment in one of the restaurants and lounges.

One of the newest and biggest urban parks in Canada is the recently renamed University Endowment Lands, declared the Pacific Spirit Regional Park when turned over to GVRD Administration last year. This brand new park welcomes you with walking, cycling, jogging and equestrian trails through varied deciduous and coniferous forests, Camosun Bog and an Ecological Reserve that is only 20 minutes from downtown via public transit. Some 50 trail entrance points are found along major thoroughfares that cut through the park, including South West Marine Drive, 16th Avenue, University Blvd., Chancellor Blvd. and North West Marine Drive. To enquire about activities in Greater Vancouver Regional District administered parks, call 432-6350. Wheelchair bound park visitors may obtain information about the growing measure of accessibility to these natural parks through the same number.

Vancouver Parks Department maintains many city parks, including Queen Elizabeth, second only in size to Stanley Park, where ornamental gardens, playing fields, picnic and hiking areas also share space with the Bloedel Floral Conservatory. This geodesic shaped conservatory dome dominates the gardens which were born out of a beautification project in a former stone quarry, and introduces a three-climatic zone interior: desert, rain forest and tropic environment. For open hours and admission, call 872-5513.

VanDusen Botanical Gardens at 37th and Oak boasts trees, ornamental shrubs and plants from every climate in the world. There are guided tours, and if you are lucky in your choice of visiting time, you could shop for exotic plants during the Garden's annual spring plant sale, or find other exotica in the Garden's twice-annual craft fairs featuring works of craftsmen from around the Province. On site is "Sprinklers Restaurant", where you can dine on westcoast regional cuisine while overlooking the beautiful gardens. Plenty of free parking and a lovely garden gift shop are also available. For hours, admissions, and special tour arrangements, call 266-7194.

At UBC the Botanical Gardens have 16,000 varieties of alpine flowers, medicinal herbs, gourmet edible plants and exotic blooms. You can buy special seeds and gardening books in the gift shop to try to duplicate these same beauties in your own home garden. The Nitobe Garden, an authentic example of a Japanese Garden, is also on UBC's campus. For hours and admission, which vary with the season, check both these attractions by phoning 228-4208.

Looking for something just a little different? The Vancouver Police Museum is located in the old Coroner's Court quarters at 240 East Cordova, chronicling the history of crime detection in Vancouver for the past 100 years. From the macabre to the ordinary, history is revealed in a collection of curios seized from criminals, that vary from zip-guns to opium pipes, from counterfeit currency to the Thompson sub-machine guns of the Prohibition era. The museum is open every day from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and is easily accessible through frequent bus service. Parking may be a problem in this area, so take a taxi or bus to this free-admittance museum.

The romantic history of transportation is revealed in the 180 wheeled exhibits at the Transportation Museum in Cloverdale. A 56 year old Pierce Arrow touring car is one of the stars of the museum, as is an almost "new" 1946 Maple Leaf truck that sports 77 original miles on its clock, a horse-drawn carriage, fire trucks, buses, including a double-deck Hong Kong tram and some old B.C. Electric models. The younger visitor will dwell on the kaleidoscopic colours of the Rolls-Royce once owned by John Lennon of Beatles fame. The Museum, at 17790 No. 10 Highway in Cloverdale, is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 5:30.

Still geared to the history of transport, but this one flying a bit higher, is the Canadian Museum of Flight and Transportation, a unique collection of historic aircraft and artifacts, located at 13527 Crescent Road in Surrey. Visitors experience an ever-changing display of over 35 aircraft in a 15-acre park-like setting, where Canada's rich and interesting aviation history is preserved. May to mid-October, 7 days a week, weather permitting, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call 531-3744 or 531-2465 for further information.

Also on the other side of the Fraser is Westminster Abbey in Mission, part of a community of Benedictine Monks. Visiting hours to see the beautiful grounds and chapel are 1:30 to 4:00 p.m. weekdays and 2 to 4 on Sundays. The Reifel Bird Sanctuary, near Ladner, covers about 340 hectares of marshland in the mouth of the Fraser River. There are paths running throughout and it is open to families, but don't bring the family pet.

Other interesting attractions all around the city include the Burnaby Village Museum, in Deer Lake Park, which includes recreated and restored buildings representative of a Lower Mainland Street in the 1890-1920 period. Open daily in season. The B.C. Sugar Museum in Vancouver displays the history of sugar processing. The Surrey Art Gallery is one of the main public galleries on the Lower Mainland. The Chinese Buddhist Temple in Richmond has artifacts including sculpture, painting, carpentry and embroidery, as well as a bonsai garden. You can get full information about location, admission and open hours of these attractions, as well as the Grocery Hall of Fame, now located in Richmond, if you call the Vancouver Travel InfoCentre at 683-2000, or pop across to the kiosk on the Pacific Centre Plaza, corner of Georgia and Granville, where travel and tourism counsellors can help plan your viewing, visiting and touring.

If your holiday period spans the summer season, Vancouver's beaches beckon within a few miles of any downtown hotel. For the bather who prefers the natural look, Wreck Beach on the remote Western side of the University is for you, the only "au natural" bathing beach in the region. A level of immediate contact and security has been brought to Wreck Beach through the modern technology of Cellular communication, so emergency or medical aid is always available. Spanish Banks, Locarno and Jericho Beaches continue around the Bay, where well groomed sands, good parking areas and concession stands are found. At Kitsilano Beach you'll find everyone from muscle builders to family groups on well-groomed sandy and grassed areas. At Kits there is also a seawater pool, and when the weather's fine there's theatrical entertainment three nights each week at Kitsilano Showboat. On the city-side of Engish Bay there is Sunset Beach, English Bay and Second and Third Beaches, which continue around Stanley Park, providing top class bikini-watching, plus full life guard protection for your swimming safety.

On the south shore of False Creek at Vanier Park is the Maritime Museum, where marine artifacts and memorabilia are on display, as well as an ever-changing variety of historic vessels in Heritage Harbour. Call 732-2211 for current information. Also in Vanier Park are the Vancouver Museum, H.R. MacMillan Planetarium and Gordon Southam Observatory. The museum has the largest civic collection in Canada and the building's distinctive dome houses a variety of Planetarium programmes throughout the year. For Museum events and exhibits, call 736-4431 and for Planetarium programmes call 736-3656. The Gordon Southam Observatory is open for telescopic observations Tuesday through Sundays from noon to 5 p.m. and 7 to 11 p.m., weather permitting. To verify hours and viewing conditions, call 738-2855.

UBC's Museum of Anthropology chronicles the artistic heritage of the Northwest Coastal Indian. The Museum building itself is noteworthy, designed by world renowned architect Arthur Erickson in stark lines that blend perfectly with the surrounding forest. Magnificent carved totems contrast with soaring glass and concrete in the Great Hall, and the intricate styles of Haida, Tsimshian and Kwakuitl carvers are displayed. Carvings by world-renowned Haida artist Bill Reid are featured here, when not travelling to other international Museums for special display. A new three-wing gallery opened this spring, interconnecting with an extension of the existing foyer, adding more than 6,000 square feet to house a permanent display of an important European ceramics collection. One of the finest collections in the world, this $2.9 million ceramics display includes examples of Italian Renaissance and baroque ornamental tiles, to add a significant European dimension to the multicultural collection and programmes of this anthropological showplace. The Museum shop offers a good selection of high quality gift ware in art prints, carvings and jewelry from leading Indian and Eskimo artists. Tuesdays are free showing days for all, and Wednesday through Sunday an entrance fee is charged. Call 228-5087 for entrance fee and viewing information.

Several experiences in one visit are possible with a stop at Canada Place, where the Cruise Ship Terminal is a tempting draw for marine lovers, where a stroll on the plaza gives magnificent views of the North Shore Mountains and the busy Vancouver Harbour, and where fine restaurants and shops are found in the luxurious Pan Pacific Hotel, the World Trade Centre and voluminous Convention Centre, which all occupy this major waterfront complex. The spectacular IMAX Theatre also found here is no ordinary movie house. It specializes in short, spectacular films that give viewers the sensation of being in the centre of the on-screen action. Steeply terraced seating assures an unobstructed view of the five-storey screen. IMAX is a Canadian developed process that runs the largest motion picture film ever made at four times the speed of a conventional movie, resulting in enormous projection of a steady, high fidelity image. The facility is pleasantly air-conditioned and has reserved seating for each of several daily presentations. For information on current shows and for tickets, call 682-IMAX (4629).

The Dr. Sun Yat-Sen Classical Chinese Garden is a step into another world, an oasis of tranquility and beauty entered through the China Gate at East Pender and Carrall Streets in the midst of Vancouver's busiest retail/commercial area. True artisans from China carefully crafted the pavilions, streams and walkways of this lovely garden and the building with its black tiled roof peaks, gables and upswept pagoda corners. It contains an authentic Ming Dynasty Garden, Bonsai exhibit and special events held there include traditional Chinese music and dance, tai chi performances and calligraphy demonstrations. The gift shop offers a fine collection of oriental artifacts, novelties and books that reflect the cultural and visual beauties of the Orient. The complex is wheelchair accessible, and for tour and events information, phone 662-3207.

The Vancouver Art Gallery at Robson Square has a continuously changing exhibition on its four levels, including Canada's quintessential display from the prolific brush of B.C.'s native daughter, Emily Carr. The Arts Centre includes a children's gallery, the Gallery Shop and Gallery Restaurant, and offers one free admission evening each week. For information, call 682-5621. Robson Square itself is a terraced plaza between Howe and Hornby Streets, the setting for many public events and a focal point of downtown activity. There is indoor and outdoor dining, the Media Centre for public forums, the Plaza for summer concerts and outdoor dances, and in fall and winter enjoy skating under the protective dome. The Law Courts Building and government complex adjoin, making it one of the most popular locations in the city centre.

While parks, museums and gardens are universal attractions, there is little doubt that shopping is a major part of anyone's visit. Whether you're in Sarnia or Saskatoon, Montreal or Moncton, you'll find the tried and true shops, the big specialty chains and fashion names. But there's a new twist in Vancouver because its Pacific Rim location and ethnic and cultural mix have added a new shopping dimension not found in other centres. The year-round gentle climate and widely diverse communities mean that shopping opportunities are spread throughout the metropolitan whole but - like the rest of Canada - the covered mall reigns supreme. From heritage buildings protected, renovated and enclosed, to brand new malls throughout the region, Vancouver and area takes no back seat in a "shop til you drop" phobia. The Pacific Centre and Royal Centre complexes at the heart of the city are continually expanding, and redevelopment of the central core adds more and more underground access to major shopping. One of the newer renovations and reclamations include two historic structures, the Model and Normal Schools at the corner of Cambie and 12th Avenue, dating from 1905 and 1909 respectively. Named City Square for its proximity to the City Hall which faces it across Cambie Street, this newer mall combines historic preservation of these buildings, with modern arcades for offices and shoppers on its 2-block sloping site, bounded by Cambie, Ash, 10th and 12th Avenues.

A brand new landmark for commuters travelling Arthur Laing or Oak Street Bridges is the 140-foot clock tower of the BridgePoint Market development opened last year in Richmond. This brightly coloured public market contains a large retail shopping and restaurant area as well, and is fully wheelchair accessible, with a glass elevator to access the second level. A cobble stone plaza and room for 1,000-car parking surround this new and intriguing mix of shops, where you can linger over tables filled with flats of berries grown on neighbouring farms, to fish pulled fresh from the river it adjoins. The waterfront section was designed to include public pier and boardwalk ideal for strolling, jogging, fishing or bird-watching over the adjoining bird sanctuary. Yacht sales, boat maintenance, lift facilities, ship chandlery, marine design and boating supplies form part of this 10-acre waterfront area with 250-berth Class A Marina. A huge working pendulum in the centre of the marketplace tells you both the phases of the moon and the level of the tide and the clock chimes the quarters to keep your shopping tour on time.

Enjoying its 12th year of continued popularity is Granville Island, where retail trade, culture and the arts join in an interesting mix of indoor/outdoor pleasures. The public market, restaurants, galleries, theatres and marinas of Granville Island can be reached by the tiny ferries that operate between the downtown West End residential district and the Island, or by bus. (From downtown, take the #10 UBC bus to Broadway and Granville and transfer to #51, the Granville Island Shuttle). During the tourist season the market and most other enterprises are open seven days a week, but after Labour Day all revert to Monday closing. There is always good shopping, strolling gallery gazing, fine theatre productions, even finer dining, craft stores and the public market, as well as many specially planned events by the merchants of the area. You can get full information from the Granville Island Centre if you call 666-5784.

A growing population and ever-increasing number of visitors helps add to the many attractions of this area as business keeps up with the task of satisfying a diverse and changing clientel. Not all can be described in one publication, as they are continually expanding. But assistance is at hand for those who want to make the most of a short stay in this city.

The new information kiosk of the Travel InfoCentre is open at Pacific Centre Plaza, and you will be given pleasant assistance and advice if you stop to talk to one of the well informed staff. Another major one-stop super-shop of information and advice is the main Vancouver InfoCentre at 1055 Dunsmuir Street. Fully trained multilingual staff can assist in all aspects of travel around the city, the region and the province. They'll even help you purchase theatre or concert tickets, advise on special events, make tour reservations, exchange foreign currency, or even advise on special dining arrangements.

Handy to all inner-city hotels, which also offer special tour desks, you can visit this Centre in person, or phone for information to 683-2000. ●

Vancouver Opera's production of "The Rake's Progress"

CULTURE

Vancouver Playhouse's production of "Hedda Gabler"

By Anne Broadfoot

Creativity swirls about Vancouver like cherry blossoms in a high wind. Its velocity stems from the many ehtnic influences that have created a climate for opera and symphony right alongside the community's craving for the cultural fast food of festivals, rock concerts and street dances. The mix has seen the city's love of the arts grow year by year, adding new dimensions to already firmly established events in every performing art.

The beautifully restored Orpheum Theatre on Granville Street has enriched the lives of generations of Vancouverites. Built in 1927, the Orpheum recalls the golden age of Show Business, when opulent entertainment palaces adorned the major cities of North America. In its lifetime the Orpheum has played host to every kind of production possible in theatre, from Vaudeville to Musical Extravaganza, concerts to cinema. Threatened with a wrecking ball in the early '70s, the people of Vancouver rallied to rescue and renovate its favorite heritage building. It has been lovingly restored to its original splendour and even beyond, as an expanded lobby and entrance area brings more light and room to audiences. Tours of one-hour length are offered and provide an in-depth look at the arts background of the city. To join this tour, call 734-ARTS (2787) - but book early because the tours fill quickly.

The whole city seems to be a concert stage as artists perform on the streets, in the museums, at Granville Island and in the malls and SkyTrain Stations. Buskers perform on every conceivable instrument, from the Paraguayan harp to the French horn, the penny whistle to the Chinese fiddle, Japanese flute, dulcimers and bandura harps, guitars and concertinas. A few decades ago these buskers would have been dragged away by police, but today entertainment hits the streets by public demand, gathering crowds of appreciative listeners who can enjoy the variety free, or donate a coin at will.

From May to October, festival frenzy takes over in Vancouver with events seen from Kitsilano's shores to Vancouver's stages, theatres and stadia. After winter's rains have stopped in May the green and grassy slopes of Vanier Park in Kitsilano ring with the joyful sounds of the Children's Festival, featuring international performers from eight or more countries in both ticketed and free activity. This annual rite of spring sees thousands of toddlers with painted faces enjoying artists like the Harbin acrobats of China, clown Willie Wiebel, or Green Thumb Theatre. There are specialty acts for kids from three upwards. This spring festival has become such a hit in the last dozen years that it now has an offshoot called "Winterfest" during the Christmas season. It doesn't take place under the familiar red and white striped tents of Kitsilano, nor can the weather interupt its fun, because it's an extravaganza held under the four-acre covered dome of B.C. Place Stadium. Live performances, skating area, family dance centre, toy library, a magic shop and a sports plaza keep kids and their parents entertained from mid-December through January 1.

In June the annual du Maurier International Jazz Festival brings ten days of intense and creative jazz sounds to stages, plazas and theatres around town. The impact of world music on jazz continues, as the multicultural elements of major artists from Africa, Japan, Europe and North and South America blend in this exciting festival. Single tickets are available from Ticketmaster outlets and at record stores, or you can charge by phone using major credit cards through 280-4444. Information on this annual event is available year-round from the Jazz Hotline, 682-0706.

In July the Folk Festival, with both free and ticketed performances, leads up to the Sea Festival, a week of activities at English Bay that varies from band concerts at the open Alexandra bandstand to salmon barbecues on the beach, and culminating in the Nanaimo to Vancouver International Bathtub Race. During July and August the Vancouver Early Music Festival provides a Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque program at UBC's Recital Hall in the Music Building. Tickets and information available through 732-1610. Incidentally, probably one of the best kept secrets in town is the excellent music program available through the University. During the school year there is an abundance of advanced student concerts along with internationally known guest performers, and many of these shows, from baroque to contemporary, are offered free. For more information, call UBC's Music School, at 228-3131.

As the summer advances, visiting artists are featured in the Comedy Festival, and in September the Fringe Festival has hundreds of performances in various venues in the Broadway and Main area. Theatre is the bread and butter of the Fringe, but it also offers everything from stand-up comedy to cabarets, performance art, dance and nouveau drama.

One-day fun fests like Greek Days on West Broadway, crowning of Miss Italia at Italian Days on Commercial Drive, the B.C. Day Weekend Powell Street Festival, sponsored by the Japanese Community, show the special ethnic fabric of Vancouver.

A Summerdance Series brings the wonder of modern dance to visitors at locations like Robson Square Plaza and Granville Island Courtyard, but summer isn't the only time to see good dance in Vancouver. Under the umbrella of the Dance Centre, a mainstage subscription series is presented on the Vancouver Playhouse stage in winter months. Under the direction of a former star of the New York City Ballet, Patricia Neary, Ballet British Columbia presents the finest in this dance form. Ticketmaster/VTC outlets can assit in locale and ticket information.

Vancouver's Theatresports improvisational performance company has enlarged its space at the 751 Thurlow Street Back Alley Theatre, expanding to include a bar and lounge for patrons. Improvised comedy is expanded too beyond previous weekend-only shows, now offering lunchtime theatre as well. For information, call 688-7013. The Fend Players Society has established a permanent performance facility at Station Street Arts Centre, 930 Station Street . There's a lounge for thirsty theatregoers, and a varied programme is offered. Box office number for information, is 688-3312.

The Mississippi Riverboat style stage, which has hosted many international stars in the past and will inspire many more in years to come, actually sets sail for entertainment in mid-June, and information is readily available from 734-7332.

One of the city's better amateur theatres is Metro Theatre Centre, 1370 South West Marine Drive, at the north access to the Arthur Laing bridge. Tickets and play information, 266-7191. Experimentation is necessary to keep theatre growing and evolving in any modern society, and the 125-seat Firehall Theatre at 280 East Cordova encourages such innovation. Another special atmosphere is found at the Van- couver East Cultural Centre, 1895 Venables, home location for local and visiting artists.

The New Play Centre, Carousel Theatre and Green Thumb Children's Theatre as well as Tamahnous Theatre, launch shows at the Waterfront Theatre on Granville Island. For information, call 685-6217. Theatres at the University of British Columbia and Simon Fraser University provide theatre craft students opportunities for practical application of their studies, and this too gives theatre buffs an opportunity to check out the newest talents.

Music enthusiasts can't pass up the offerings of the Vancouver Opera Association, under the direction of Huus Mostart. Whether you need surtitles to understand the operatic offerings or just revel in the excitement and enrichment of music by masterful musical story tellers of past and contemporary days, call 682-2871 for VOA playdates at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre. Four major works are presented each year between October and May. A six-concert main series is presented annually by the Vancouver Chamber Choir at the Orpheum Theatre, but special events are conducted throughout the year as well. The Vancouver Bach Choir, New Music Society and Vancouver Recital Society, offer regular seasons with local artists hosting visiting artists and conductors. Phone the Orpheum Box Office for information, 683-2311. Music in the Gallery is also offered at Presentation House in North Vancouver, phone 929-1117, where there is also a full season schedule of drama, art and gallery displays.

Vancouver has become the focus for another dimension in the creative arts -film. The massive new $25 million North Shore Studios at 555 Brooksbank Avenue has seven stages occupying 84,000 square feet, plus another 100,000 square feet of office space and 45,000 square feet of support services. There is even a helipad to give quick access to the local, national and international actors who film such popular TV features as Wiseguy, 21 Jump Street and Top of the Hill. Movie length features are filmed here too.

For the jazz fan, the Hot Jazz Club at 2120 Main Street is recognized as home of Dixieland, Swing, the big band sounds and even the cross-over jazz gaining influence from different international beats. There are regular and visiting musicians here, and prices vary according to who's on stage, so call ahead to 873-4131 for information. For concerts of a different stripe, anything from rock to blues, western to acid, it's the Commodore Ballroom, a cabaret location on Granville Street that recently enjoyed a million dollar facelift for the comfort of patrons. Also a longtime favorite location for Vancouverites, the Commodore ballroom can accommodate 1,000 people, and has four service bars and six video screens. The suspended Commodore dance floor has provided dancing pleasure to Vancouverites for many decades. For show and event information, call 681-7838.

The choice is so wide that all possibilities cannot be chronicled on these pages. Three special services are available to answer your cultural questions. The Vancouver Ticket Centre number is 280-4411. The number for ordering tickets by major credit card is 280-4444. These phone lines open at 9:30 a.m. but during periods of heavy demand it may be difficult to get through. Be persistent and you'll be able to have your tickets waiting at the Box Office at Curtain Time. There's also an informative Sportsline for information in that area, at 280-4400. And, as mentioned regularly throughout these pages, full assistance of a multilingual staff is available at the Vancouver Tourist InfoCentre, 683-2000 and through the Vancouver Arts Hotline, at 437-ARTS (2787). ●

A DINING ADVENTURE

Vancouver's array of restaurants is as exciting as the city itself. The number and variety of dining establishments reflect the city's cosmopolitan sophistication and international influence.

The city has always been known for its prolific sea fare and has retained many of its original seafood restaurants, both the informal fish-and-chip outlets and the establishments which have made the harbour's daily catches the ultimate in haute cuisine. The last few years, however, have seen these restaurants supplemented by a wide variety of ethnic dining spots. The selection ranges from the unpretentious fare of Mexican diners to the exquisite preparation of French cuisine. The already familiar Italian restaurants have expanded their menus to include little-known regional delicacies, and Chinatown has likewise added to its regular menus with such additions as dim-sums and more exotic items.

The younger dining crowd favours the many bistros and sidewalk cafes which have currently sprung up. Here the offerings run from homey fare to rich desserts to health foods. A large number of dining and dancing establishments cater to the young romantics with sophisticated menus and the latest in music.

Whatever one's preferences, Vancouver's eating spots can fulfill them. From casual family outings to the most formal of occasions, this city can offer precisely what one is looking for. Of course, if one is indecisive, there is always the fun of searching and experimenting!□

EVERYTHING ON OUR MENU IS SERVED WITH A VIEW.

There's nothing quite like the experience of dining at The Landing Restaurant. The menu combines classic Nouvelle cuisine with West Coast originality. The decor creates a sense of Europe on the Vancouver waterfront. The view captures the majestic panorama of the North Shore. The result is an ambience every bit as perfect as the food. And the reason why The Landing Restaurant has a flavour all its own, and was recently chosen by Air Canada's enRoute magazine as one of the finest restaurants in Canada.

LA COTE D'AZUR
1216 Robson Street (Bute)
685-2629

"Extraordinary wine collection. The right wines, the right vintages, back to the 40's. Run by one of the deans of the business. Homey French-country setting, with all the right trappings, huge fireplace, discreet lighting, and white-jacketed waiters. Founded before the era of restaurant designers. Edith Piaf on tape. Uncontrived ambience. Reliable kitchen with safe, simple French fare; rich sauces; and fish treated with respect. Plenty of regulars, as much for the atmosphere as the menu." As quoted from Litt Report 1990.

LALA'S UKRAINIAN SPECIALTY RESTAURANT
6950 No. 3 Road
Richmond, B.C.
273-4255

You'll love evenings spent here! A family affair for 19 years, mother (Lala) stays in the kitchen lovingly creating Ukrainian fare that makes patrons return again and again while her two daughters serve to make your visit a heart-warming experience. The lacy tablecloths and authentic handicrafts lend a festive flare to the cosy dining room where hungry patrons choose from five varieties of pyroghy and/or the holupche (cabbage rolls), tasty little critters chockful of rice and meats. The homemade Ukrainian sausage is the best this side of Winnipeg, the hearty borsch unsurpassed, the goulash absolutely heart-warming. Followed by a generous slice of warm, homemade pie, lunch or dinner at Lala's is guaranteed to warm your heart!

NOODLEMAKERS
122 Powell Street
683-9196

Earth, water and plants are recurring themes throughout ancient Chinese paintings and poetry. The Noodlemakers combines these three elements to create a beautiful, intimate atmosphere, that is as enjoyable as the exquisitely prepared Chinese cuisine. The valuable collection of fish that swim in the pool provide the entertainment. At 7:30, the hostess rings a gong, and the fish all gather to nibble food from her hand. Many ancient artifacts are on display throughout the four dining levels, and you can admire them as you dine on delicacies like Yin Yan Rolls, Celestial Salad, Lemon Chicken, Prawns in Lobster Sauce and Chinese Beef & Pinenuts to name just a few. And what's nice; is that they do not use M.S.G. in their cooking. Open for lunch and dinner.

SHIP OF THE SEVEN SEAS
Foot of Lonsdale, North Vancouver
987-3344
Formerly the North Vancouver Ferry No. 5, the Ship Of The Seven Seas is one of Vancouver's most unusual restaurants. Luxurious and colorful, it is one of the most interesting eating spots in Canada, and has built a truly international reputation; offering a splendid view of the city, the harbour, the neighbouring drydock and tugboats and the famous Sea Bus next door. And if the view across the water doesn't take your breath away, the view that awaits you at the Seven Seas buffet will do it. As you fill your plate with your choice of 60 different dishes (that's right 60); you are given a verbal explanation of the wide range of seafoods. Also in the buffet are trimmings, salads, roast beef and chicken. But the emphasis is truly on seafood. The wide choice of seafoods in the buffet includes such delights as excellent domestic salmon, crab, shrimp, scallops, prawns, oysters and many other delicious Pacific fish; to exotica like octopus and smoked eel from New Zealand.

TAI CHI HIN MANDARIN RESTAURANT
888 Burrard Street

682-5566
"A tradition of hospitality" prevails throughout the Hotel Georgia. Whether you are in the Cavalier Grill for breakfast at 6:30 am, having lunch during the busy noon hour or enjoying a relaxing dinner you will find our service both friendly and most efficient. Night Court is an ideal location for that business lunch...overlooking Georgia Street and the Art Gallery fountain. Live Jazz is featured on Thursdays followed by dancing Thursday, Friday and Saturdays. The "tradition" abounds in the George V British style sing-a-long pub. Vancouver's favorite quartet entertains Tuesday through Saturday nights. Weekday lunches include traditional favorites like Steak & Kidney Pie, Bangers & Mash or Shepherds Pie. The Georgia is across from the Vancouver Art Gallery and Pacific Centre shopping mall and surrounded by the city's business, theatre and shopping districts.
